Call Number: 13466

Join us for an interesting and rewarding course on working effectively with families of young children.

The course will provide students with knowledge and skills for working collaboratively with other professionals and family members of children with disabilities. Focus is on the role of the early childhood professional in forming and sustaining transdisciplinary school, family, and community connections. Other topics of discussion include: social and cultural diversity, family life cycle, and the impact of poverty. In addition to regular class meetings, the class utilizes a variety of online learning technologies.

You will enjoy meeting as a class on Tuesdays at 4:25 p.m. and by working from the comforts of home on weeks that we meet online.

Please note, some online classes will be synchronous in nature.
